

A Paper With A Contents List

Contents

1 Introduction

2 Method

3 Results

References

1 Introduction

This paper has a contents list, which is where papers most often mention their reference section before reaching it.

2 Method

We describe the method here. Readers who want the full derivation should consult the references listed at the end of this paper, and in particular the bibliography of [2], which is more complete.

The remainder of this section is filler so that the document has enough pages for the last-15% fallback to have something to bite on.

References

- [1] A. Author and B. Writer. A study of things that were studied.
Journal of Tests, 12(3):45-67, 2021.
- [2] C. Coder. Another paper about code, at some length.
Proceedings of Nowhere, pages 1-9, 2019.
- [3] D. Doe and E. Example. Yet another reference to something.
Review of Examples, 5(1):10-20, 2023.
- [4] F. Fisher. On the reproducibility of reproducibility studies.
Annals of Recursion, 3(2):100-115, 2024.